U.S. Troops to Leave Japan, Ike Promises

Prime Minister Given Okay For $500 Million Loan

WASHINGTON (UP) — Japanese Prime Minister Nobuske Kishi woundup today a Washington visit that won approval for early withdrawal of American troops from Japan and 500 million dollars in U.S. aid.

The 60-year-old pro-American premier was highly successful in his three-day talks with President Eisenhower and other top American officials in gaining a number of objectives for bringing about a "new era" between the two countries.

Kishi won a promise from the United States to withdraw "promptly" its remaining ground forces in Japan and to "revise" the security pact to give Tokyo more of a voice in how the remaining air and naval units shall be used.

Other Requests

He also received assurance from Eisenhower that his demand for a complete ban on H-bomb tests will "be taken into account" in the American negotiations with the Soviet Union on this subject.

These points were reported in a joint communique issued in the name of the two leaders late Friday.

In addition, Kishi was able to arrange for about 500 million dollars in loans from the International Monetary Fund, the Export-Import Bank and the Department of Agriculture to tide Japan over its present foreign exchange shortage.

The Japanese leader also won grudging American acknowledgement that his country could increase trade with Communist China, although U.S. officials expressed feat this might lead to shipping strategic materials to the Reds.

Primary Expense Reports Filed In Washington

Reports on campaign expenditures in Washington County for the May primary election have been filed, but with some notable exceptions.

The biggest single report was filed by Walter W. Boswell, one of the co-treasurers of the Woodward-Gray-Furlong committee showing expenditures of just over $19,000.

Individual accounts filed by Sheriff Grant Furlong and Recorder John D. Woodward individually showed expenditures of $6,993.34 and $2,745.92 respectively although in each case a major part of the expenditures was represented by a contribution of the joint fund.

Furlong and Woodward were both successful in their bids for nomination although L. C. Gray, running for controller, lost to incumbent Peter Elish.

Elish, incidentally, filed an account showing expenditures of $1,465 23, while an Elish for Controller committee composed chiefly of his office employes showed expenditures of $278 23.

Among those missing in the list of accounts filed along with Gray was C. O. (Lefty) Williams, unsuccessful bidder for the sheriff nomination.

Walter Nakoneczny, who lost to Woodward, filed an accounting of $217.22.

All the other candidates, Democrats and Republicans alike, either filed expense accounts of less than $150 or none at all.

Child Reunited With 'Too Old' Foster Parents

TAMPA, Fla. (UP) — Mr. and Mrs. Dubell Dukes were reunited today with the daughter they wanted to adopt but couldn't because they were described as too old and too poor.

"We feel 20 years younger," said Dubell, a stock clerk in a Tampa hardware store.

Little Jeannie Marie Ellison, 3, was unexpectedly returned to the Dukes Friday night by order of the Florida Supreme Court which noted in its decision the privilege to have poor but industrious parents was a "great heritage."

Jeannie recognized the Dukes, despite an absence of 17 months, and called them "Mommy and Daddy Dukes." She had lived with them before the state Welfare Department took her away 17 months ago.

The Supreme Court ruled that the Welfare Department had no right to take the child away on the ground that the Dukes were too old and too poor to provide a proper ome.

Dukes, 48, earns $3,000 a year at the hardware store. Mrs. Dukes, 63, receives a small pension.

Raise Funds to Bury Children, Tornado Victims

FARGO, N.D. (UP)—A school teacher started raising funds today to buy shrouds for six children of one family killed in a tornado that also destroyed all their clothes.

The children were members of Gerald Munson's family. Munson spent the night in a Bismarck hotel Thursday night unaware that the tornado almost had wiped out his family.

Another family — Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Udahl, both about 50, and their daughter, Mary, about 8 — died in the storm that claimed 10 lives, left 2,000 persons homeless and wrought damage estimated at between 25 and 30 million dollars.

Munson's children will be buried Monday at Moorhead, Minn.

A good start had already been made in getting Fargo back on its feet. Short hours after it had been described as looking like a "battlefield" it began to take on the appearance of a logging camp.

Tractors, bulldozers, roadscrapers, and men afoot picked and pushed their way through the wreckage. The scream of power saws and the smell of sawdust hung over the stricken area.

Gov. John Davis surveyed the desolation and reported on a television broadcast that he had been informed by Presidential Assistant Sherman Adams that it was a matter of hours before Fargo would be declared a disaster area.

HIS BILL $1,500 — Parents of Benny Hooper, the boy who was trapped deep down in a narrow well shaft in the Hooper yard in a Long Island, N. Y., town, are pondering a bill for $1,500 submitted by Dr. Joseph H. Kris (above). He said he spent eight days on the Hooper case. His work in the lowering of a hose to give oxygen to the trapped boy was credited with saving Benny's life.

Doctor's Bill Brings Protests, Many Threats

MANORVILLE, N.Y. (UP) — A doctor's decision to charge Benny Hooper's parents $1,500 for saving their son from death in a well brought protests today from across the nation and anonymous threats of violence against the physician.

But many of the citizens in this Long Island community defended Dr. Joseph Kris because he habitually answers appeals for medical aid regardless of the hour.

Kris's bill "for professional services" was dated June 14 and sent to Benjamin Kent Hooper, whose 7-year-old son was rescued from a 23-hour ordeal in a backyard well last May 17.

The doctor, in refusing to withdraw the bill, said $1,500 was a reasonable fee and below the sum that he should have charged.

But other doctors, including officials of the American Medical Assn., said Kris acted unwisely even though they did not question that his vigilance in keeping oxygen available to Benny saved the boy from suffocation in the bottom of the well.

Surgeon Says Love of Money 'Root of Evil'

PITTSBURGH (UP)—The director of the American College of Surgeons says the love of money, more so than in any other vocation, "is the root of all evil" in the medical profession.

"If there were no money involved in medical care, we would have few evils," Dr. Paul Hawley declared.

He told a graduating class of nurses here Friday "The ignorance o fpatients" offers the physician "many opportunities for exploitation."

"Patients," he explained, "often demand treatment for non-existent conditions, or expect drastic treatment for inconsequential ills. They are willing to pay for it, and this offers the temptation to indulge in unnecessary treatment."

Hawley said the temptation exists in all fields of the healing arts but, "perhaps because the financial rewards are greater," it is particularly strong in surgery.

"This results in far too much unjustified surgery," he declared

Hawley, who retired as a major general from the Army Medical Corps and served as medical director for the Veterans Administration before joining the college of surgeons, called on doctors to place the quality of "integrity" at the top of their code of ethics.

South Korea Cancels Military Leaves; Alerted for Red Attack

Safeguards Against Red Retaliation for Allied Arms Buildup

SEOUL (UP) — South Korea cancelled all military leaves today and placed its 700,000 soldiers, sailors and airmen on a full alert today in apparent anticipation of a possible Communist attack.

Deputy Defense Minister Kim Chong Kap said the alert was "routine." There was little doubt, however, that it was meant as a safeguard against Red retaliation by force for the Allied decision to match the Communist arms buildup in Korea.

Kim said South Korea's troops are alerted every year on about June 25—the anniversary of the Communist invasion in 1950—as a means of "intensifying training and checking equipment."

Leaves Unexplained

He did not explain why it was necessary to cancel leaves, indicating that some soldiers had been excused from duty, if the alert had been planned for some time.

Unofficial sources pointed out that the alert was ordered a matter of hours after the Western decision to modernize the defenses of South Korea was reported to President Syngman Rhee.

Communist propagandists in Asia denounced the Allied decision today as a "plot that seriously threatens peace in the Far East."

In South Korea and Nationalist China, however, the decision was hailed as a morale-building measure that will prove "the free world means business." America's Far Eastern friends lamented only that the move was "long overdue."

Reds Hit Back

Radio Pyongyang, the voice of Red Korea, broadcast a long statement by Maj. Gen. Chung Kook Rok, chief Communist truce delegate in the Asiatic nation.

"The U.S. side has not observed the armistice agreement at any time since it was established," Chung was quoted as saying "Now, instead of withdrawing foreign troops from all Korea, it is attempting to bring in new type weapons and make the U.S. military occupation of South Korea permanent

(There are an estimated 335,000 Communist troops from China in North Korea—approximately 33½ Red divisions. Allied forces in South Korea include 2 U.S. divisions and scattered units from other western nations.)

Judge Satisfied with Photographers in Armstrong Courtroom

KITTANNING, Pa. (UP) — Judge J. Frank Graff, who set a precedent in Armstrong County by permitting courtroom pictures during a murder trial this week, said today the experience showed "there is no reason to keep photographers out of court."

"They (the news photographers) didn't bother me in the slightest—I didn't hear a lick at all," the judge said. "I don't see why photographers should be kept out of court rooms if they don't disrupt proceedings."

The jurist opened his court to photographers during the four-day murder trial of Richard T. Davis, Pittsburgh ex-convict who was convicted Friday of first degree murder. Two photographers were allowed to take pictures as long as only natural light was used.

Judge Graff congratulated New Kensington Daily Dispatch photographer Edward Adams, who took the bulk of the pictures which were distributed to newspapers and press associations.

'Just as Welcome'

"There is no reason to keep photographers out of court," the judge said. "They are just as welcome as reporters."

During the trial, Adams made a total of 245 exposures. There were no restrictions as to the subject matter and the photographers were permitted to sit near the judge's bench, within about six feet of the defendant, at all times.

The taking of courthouse pictures in Pennsylvania became the issue of a legal battle which is still in progress when Westmoreland County Court banned the taking of pictures in adjacent corridors in March, 1954, when Pennsylvania Turnpike killer John Wesley Wable was brought to trial.

Wable was convicted and when he was brought to court to be sentenced to death, the Pittsburgh Post-Gazette and the Greensburg Tribune-Review instituted a test of the ban by taking pictures of the defendant in a court corridor.

Seven executives and employes of the newspapers were cited for contempt of court, fined and sentenced to five days in jail. The state Supreme Court upheld the convictions, but remitted the jail sentences. The defendants now are challenging the constitutionality of the ban in a federal court proceeding.

Since that time, one other county in the state in addition to Armstrong has permitted taking of courtroom pictures. Warren County Judge Alexander C. Flick Jr. earlier this year allowed taking of pictures during proceedings in a murder case.

Davis Convicted Of Slaying; May Get Death Penalty

KITTANNING, Pa. (UP)—Robert T. Davis was convicted of first degree murder Friday for the bludgeon-slaying of Mrs. Emily Shupe Foster. The jury of six man and six women recommended the death penalty.

Armstrong County Judge J. Frank Graff withheld sentencing pending defense motions for a new trial.

Davis, who spurned his attorney's advice and took the stand to plead for his life, stood stoicly as the jury verdict was read by Foreman Roy G. Westwood.

He sat down and stared at the ceiling as each juror was polled to confirm he or she had voted for first degree murder with the penalty of death.

The verdict, if upheld by Graff, will be the first death sentence imposed in Armstrong County courts in 54 years.

The jurors took the case at 11:59 a.m. and the verdict was agreed upon at 3:05 p.m.

Special Prosecutor Samuel Strauss had demanded the death penalty in his summation to the jury.

'Cold Defendant'

"I never saw a more cold, gum-chewing, indifferent defendant in a murder trial," he said. "You know why he's calm. He knows the day of reckoning is here. He has only one chance—the gullibility of this jury."

Defense attorney Flov Jones questioned whether the case against his client was "maybe a little too pat." The real murderer, he suggested, "hasn't been found."

Davis, 28, had taken the stand Thursday to repudiate a signed statement in which he allegedly admitted to hitting Mrs. Foster, 25, an expectant mother, with a lug wrench last Jan. 30, outside her Leechburg home.

He testified he signed the statement but didn't say it. He said police had threatened him with life imprisoament if he failed to cooperate.

Graff told the jury "You can't convict without that confession."

Civil Defense Units In Monessen Tests

Power driven radio equipment of Monessen Civil Defense units will be tested today and tomorrow, W. Roy McShaffrey, director, announced.

He said all the unit's radio equipment will be in operation and manned by personnel. A portable radio will be set up at City Park as part of the corps' field unit.

McShaffrey said the test is being made to try out the emergency power supplies and all types of radio communications.

Correction for Tank Memorial Expenses

The freight expenses for the 72,000-pound Sherman tank to be installed as a war memorial in City Park sometime this year will total about $900 instead of the incorrect figure listed in yesterday's edition.

The campaign for the memorial is being conducted by the Allison-Lescanac Post 1190, Veterans of Foreign Wars, Monessen.

The demilitarized tank will be brought here from Chambersburg.

At 3:30 p. m., a car operated by John Luksich, of 1053 Graham Ave., Monessen, was involved in a mishap with a station wagon driven by John Nairn, of Hopwood. Luksich, police said, was backing his car out of a parking stall at Third St. and Donner Ave. when the accident happened.

An accident at 7 p. m. at the intersection of East Donner Ave. and Mohawk St. involved cars driven by Alfred Perez, of Donora, and John Popovich, of 218 Indiana Ave., Monessen.

George Bulazo

George Bulazo New Principal At West Newton

George Bulazo, West Newton High School football coach for the past four seasons, has been named principal.

He will succeed Stewart S. Townsend, who retired earlier this month.

Bulazo will assume his new duties on August 1. He plans to relinquish his coaching position.

Supervising Principal James Sterner said that Bulazo was elected during a School Board meeting earlier in the week. He was unanimously selected from among five applicants.

The new West Newton principal is married and the father of two daughters. He and his family reside at 321 Vernon Drive in West Newton.

Bulazo is a graduate of Masontown High School. He earned his bachelor's degree at Waynesburg College.

Masters Degree

The new principal also holds a masters degree from the University of Pittsburgh.

He started his teaching career six years ago at Dunbar High School. At both Dunbar and West Newton, he was an instructor in mathmatics.

Bulazo had winning football seasons for four straight years at West Newton despite a tiny school enrollment. He was regarded as one of the finest young coaches in the district.

In accepting his new position, Balazo said that he intended to give up coaching.

Applications for the West Newton grid vacancy are now being accepted as Sterner.

Youth Wounded Shooting Rats

Hugh Swogger, 17, of 751 Park St., California, was admitted to Brownsville Hospital yesterday with a gunshot wound of the right foot.

Swogger and some friends were hunting rats near Vestaburg when a gun carried by Robert Stroud, of 802 Green St., California, accidentally discharged and wounded Swogger.

Hospital attendants reported Swogger's condition as good.

Teenage Boys Held in Beating Of War Veteran

PITTSBURGH (UP)—Two teenaged boys, accused of beating and robbing a partially blinded war veteran, today faced juvenile court action.

The victim, Leonard Jamauskas, 49, was taken to Montefiore Hospital after the attack Friday for treatment of lacerations of the nose and forehead, an arm injury and cuts and bruises. Doctors ordered him to return today for x-rays.

Police said Peter Poutakes, 16, and Melvin Rosenblatt, 14, admitted jumping the veteran in Schenley Park and ripping a wallet containing $180 from his pants.

Rosenblatt was arrested two hours later by Inspector James DeStout who followed the youth to his home after he refused to stop for questioning. The other teenager was arrested a short time later. Rosenblatt had $165 when apprehended and Poutakes had $4 and the victim's wallet.

Woman's Plea Turned Down In Washington

Washington County Judge David H. Weiner yesterday refused to grant a writ of habeas corpus to a 68-year-old Monongahela woman charged with the May 2 murder of Joseph Mancuso, 65, also of Monongahela.

The case will now go to a grand jury.

Mrs. Trappin is charged with murder and accessory before and after the fact in the case. Mancuso's body was found in the early morning hours lying practically on the doorstep of Mrs. Trappin's home on Railroad St.

Mancuso had been strangled.

Because of her advanced years, Mrs. Trappin has been free under $3,000 bond since shortly after her arrest by Monongahela police and that bond was renewed yesterday after the petition for the writ had been turned down.

Defeated but Reappointed

Paul Johnson, who was defeated in his bid for reelection to the Donora School Board last month and whose current term was to expire next December, resigned his position on the board Thursday and immediately was named to complete the 4½ year term of James Myers, who resigned and has moved from Donora.

The board said Johnson was appointed because he has been "a valuable member of the board for eight years and. . . an experienced man is needed on the board due to the fact that two new members will be starting their terms in December."

The reappointments ranged from members of boards of trustees of state hospitals, teachers' colleges and Pennsylvania State University to the various professional examining boards in the state.

Among the reappointments were John A. Smith, Dickinson, to the state Milk Control Commission; Maurice Abrams, Wyncote, to the state Unemployment Compensation Review Board; the Rev. Richard T. S. Supreme Court Delays Recess to Settle Tangle Over Girard Case

WASHINGTON (UP)—The Supreme Court today underlined the importance the United States places on the Girard case by postponing its recess to settle the legal tangle arising from it.

The court, which has not sat in July during recent times, set July 8 for hearings in the case.

Extension of the court term, already one of the longest in recent years, disrupted vacation plans of most of the justices.

Justice William O. Douglas, a veteran summer traveler, already has left for Europe and his schedule calls for him to be heading for the Khyber Pass and Afghanistan in a station wagon on July 8.

The Girard case has touched off an international dispute and U.S. officials feel it jeopardizes relations with a number of allies.

It arose after Army Specialist 3c William S. Girard killed a Japanese woman as she was scavenging for scrap metal on an Army firing range in Japan.

Attorneys will press appeals filed by both Girard and the government from last Tuesday's decision by Federal District Judge Joseph C. McGarraghy. That ruling barred a Japanese trial for Girard.

Court aides said Douglas will be notified of the decision to hear the appeals. But it was not known whether he will cancel his trip.

Plans of Chief Justice Earl Warren and Justice Tom C. Clark to attend an American Bar Assn. meeting in London July 24-30 will not necessarily be affected by the Girard arguments.

Justice Harold H. Burton is Europe bound, too. He has a steamship reservation for July 13.

The court allowed four hours for the arguments, although two is the usual limit. It said briefs must be filed by each side on or before July 1 and must be answered within five days of receipt.

Girard is now confined at Camp Whittington in Japan. His Japanese trial was to have begun Friday following the waiver of U.S. jurisdiction over him by Defense Department officials.

The government's Supreme Court appeal asks a reversal of McGarraghy's ruling that a Japanese trial would violate the soldier's constitutional rights. Girard's attorneys want an affirmance of that decision, plus a writ of habeas corpus to release him from custody.

$31,762 Is Spent by Democrats in County

The primary election campaign last month cost Westmoreland County Democratic candidates and their followers a total of $31,762 61, an expense account filed at the commissioners office revealed yesterday.

The account showed 43 separate contributions, including one for $6,500 and two for $3,500. Contributions ranged from $25 to $6,500.

Joseph M. Loughran, who made an unsuccessful attempt for nomination for judge, listed expenses totaling $10,978.86. Contributions from a number of sources totaled $4,300 including one $2,500 donation.

Jessie S. McCormick, treasurer of the J.M. Loughran Campaign Fund, filed an account showing contributions and expenses of $1,945 which were separate from Loughran's personal expenses.

Leo Sukala, who was unopposed for renomination as prothonotary, listed campaign contributions of $800 and expenses of $1,603 21.

Incumbent Mayor Raymond E. Garlock of New Kensington, who won renomination by a narrow margin, listed 1,243.32 in contributions and expenses which were shared by five candidates.

Edward A. Wolfe, who upset incumbent Mayor Frank Binda, for the nomination in Jeannette, listed contributions of $400 and expenses of $470.74.

James L. McWherter of Derry, another unsuccessful candidate for nomination for judge spent $4,623 11 and received no contributions.

Howard M. Bricker of Greensburg RD 1, who upset incumbent Raymond H. Turner for Democratic clerk of courts nomination spent $532.55 and listed no contributions.

Turner listed expenditure of $2,292 22 and contributions of $1,400.

Earl S. Keim of Youngwood stated he received contributions totaling $2,150 and had expenditures totaling $2,420.68. Keim had no opposition in his campaign for Democratic nomination as district attorney.

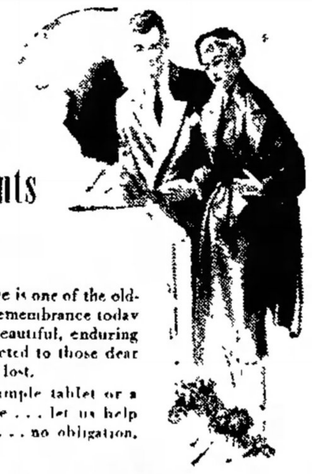
Did you ever stop to think why monuments are erected?



The urge for remembrance is one of the oldest of man's instincts. Remembrance today is best typified by the beautiful, enduring monuments erected to those dear ones loved and lost.

BIG NEWS!

The Church may not have its name blazoned across every front page, but it is big news just the same.

From infancy to old age, the Church offers many things to each and every individual.

The Church introduces human beings to God.

The Church develops man's spiritual life through experiences of worship.

The Church emphasizes the beautiful through its architecture, its services, whether ritualistic or informal, its music.

The Church develops leaders through its many activities.

The Church broadens man's outlook through its work of sending the gospel to those in far-away places.

The Church exemplifies the brotherhood of man through the welcome it extends to all who believe.

Last, and most important of all, the Church offers salvation and the assurance of eternal life for every believer.

Big news—the Church! Can you afford to miss it?

THE CHURCH FOR ALL . . . ALL FOR THE CHURCH

The Church is the greatest factor on earth for the building of character and good citizenship It is a storehouse of spiritual values Without a strong Church neither democracy nor civilization can survive There are four sound reasons why every person should attend services regularly and support the Church They are: (1) For his own sake (2) For his children's sake. (3) For the sake of his community and nation (4) For the sake of the Church itself, which needs his moral and material support Plan to go to church regularly and read your Bible daily.

'Pike Trial in Session Today

Move to Speed Up Testimony

HARRISBURG (UP)—The Pennsylvania Turnpike conspiracy trial goes into its first Saturday session today in a move ordered by the court to wind up the complex presentation of testimony at the earliest possible date.

Scheduled to take the witness stand in Dauphin County Court are two representatives of the Pierce Management Co., a consulting firm whose report that year disclosed charges of "made work" on a 1955 turnpike contract with the Manu-Mine Research and Development Corp., Reading.

The report, ordered by former Attorney General Herbert B. Cohen, now a state Supreme Court justice, charged Manu-Mine with performing unnecessary work in connection with the filling of abandoned mines beneath the Northeastern extension, and with charging the Turnpike Commission excessive prices.

Says Work Unnecessary

The firm's representatives, James Pierce and Dr. Franz Kudlich, were expected to read into the record the results of their five-month study into Manu-Mine operations.

Three previous Commonwealth witnesses charged that Manu-Mine's work, for which the commission paid almost seven million dollars did not reduce the possibilty of subsidence on the roadway "one bit."

The last of the three, Ralph Lambert, chief engineer for the state Mines Department, said Friday that none of the work performed by the firm was necessary, and the firm left undone work which would have reduced the possibilty of subsidence.

Lambert attacked the entire principle behind Manu - Mine's handling of the project, which involved the drilling of holes into abandoned mine voids through which filling materials were pumped to support the mine-overheads.

Lambert said that Mines Department engineers found many cases where Manu-Mine had drilled into pillars of coal left to support the overhead This, he said, was the result of "blind" drilling, without adequate knowledge of the subterranean coal veins.

'HONEYMOON' IS OVER — Former senate page Huw Williams, 18, looks at Christina Wennerstrom, 16-year-old daughter of a Swedish air attache, after their arrest for speeding near Williamsport, Pa., and the end of their 18-day disappearance. Christina told state police they had married in Charleston, W. Va., before going on a honeymoon to Canada. However, a Swedish embassy attache reported "They are not married but have wedding rings."

The grand jury, which first met in May, was recalled by McKee to consided the charges against the Wheeling truck driver.

An indictment also was returned against Robert Clark, 35, of Wheeling, for manslaughter in connection with the death June 4 of city fireman Alvin Corkran, 33.

Senate GOP Claims Democrats Swapping Votes On Civil Rights

WASHINGTON (UP) — Senate Republicans today accused Democrats of swapping votes on the civil rights bill to secure passage of a measure authorizing construction of a government High dam at Hells Canyon.

The charges came as House supporters of the controversial Hells Canyon bill planned quick action on the Senate-passed measure.

The Senate, in a slap at President Eisenhower, voted 45-38 Friday night for the government dam after three days of hot debate on the public-versus-private power issue.

Sen. Charles E. Potter (R-Mich.) charged that civil rights legislation "was sold down the river" by some northern Democrats in a "deal" to secure the Hells Canyon bill.

He said some of the northern Democrats agreed to vote with southerners last Thursday in an unsuccessful attempt to prevent the House-passed civil rights bill from being sent directly to the floor for debate.

Sen. Arthur V. Watkins (R-Utah) said "civil rights had a lot to do with the Hells Canyon vote—more than most people realize."

Sens. Mike Mansfield (D-Mont.) and Wayne Morse (D-Ore.), who voted with the southerners Thursday, branded Potter's charges as "untrue."

Chairman Clair Engle (D-Calif.) said his House Interior Committee would get to work on the Hells Canyon bill "as quickly as possible."

Other congressional news:

Un-American: A group of House members hoped to reach an early showdown on the authority and conduct of the Committee on Un-American Activities. They did not, however, favor a proposal by Rep. Donald L. Jackson (R-Calif.) to abolish the committee. The issue of curbing the committee arose after its chairman, Rep. Francis E. Walter (D-Pa.), defied Speaker Sam Rayburn's ban on radio - TV broadcasts of all House committee hearings.

Observers: Secretary of State John Foster Dulles has asked Senate leaders to name a small group of senators to keep in close touch with developments at London disarmament talks. Dulles said, however, it would be "premature" for the group to attend the London sessions at this time. Senate Democratic Leader Lyndon B. Johnson said he would appoint Democratic members of the group soon.

Farm: The House has approved 344-7 a $1,300,000,000 bill to expand the farm surplus disposal program. The bill was passed after the House rejected an attempt to prevent the administration from selling 65 million dollars worth of surplus commodities to Poland. The measure was sent to a Senate - House conference committee to work out differences with a Senate-passed bill.

Norstad: Gen. Lauris Norstad, supreme commander of Allied powers in Europe, has told the House Foreign Affairs Committee it would be a "disaster" for the United States to renounce Status of Forces agreements with its allies. Norstad said it would be an "act of irresponsibility" to rescind the treaties which permit the trial of U.S. servicemen in foreign courts. "It would result in a great loss of confidence in the United States at this time when our leadership . . . is of the greatest importance," he said.

The Assembly Session: Good or Bad?

THE SESSION of the Pennsylvania Assembly which has just adjourned seemed to us to fit the temper of the people and the realities of the political situation in Harrisburg about as well as could be expected.

If this judgment sounds like "damning with faint praise", we still can reach no other.

Governor Leader, it seems plain, is going to run for the U. S. Senate on the basis of a program which he knew the Republican leaders of the legislature wouldn't accept 100 per cent and couldn't accept and still be faithful to their commitments to the voters.

And the Republicans apparently are satisfied to go before the electorate next year on the record of this Assembly.

So everybody is happy or pretending to be happy — in a political way at least.

* * *

THE BIG fight was over the budget. And the Republican majorities in the Assembly wound up voting 70 million dollars less than Governor Leader asked to be spent over the next two years.

But this was still 250 million more than was spent in the biennium just closed.

Mr. Leader apparently is going to try to convince the people that the difference between his recommendations and what the legislature gave him is the difference between the devil and the deep blue sea.

But we don't envy him that task.

* * *

THE REPUBLICANS, on the other hand, already are pointing with pride to the fact that they held the line against additional state taxes. This was what they promised to do in last fall's campaign when the voters gave them control of the legislature.

And we agree that this is no mean accomplishment these days. Not many governmental bodies, Republican or Democrat, are doing it.

Whether it was done at the expense of important public services is in the realm of political controversy. Undoubtedly there will be plenty of it during the next year and a half. And we shall listen with sincere interest.

But we are inclined to feel, nevertheless, that, given the condition of divided responsibility in Harrisburg, the legislature's performance was not bad at all. And not the least of its better points is the fact that the session lasted only five and a half months — the shortest session in eight years. That is a most welcome change from that gruelling and fruitless struggle of two years ago.

Another Racket

THE OFFICE of the State Attorney General and the State Police are to be complimented for their efforts to bring about a court test of the legal status of so-called "pinball" machines.

The State Police seized 40 of these gadgets in a series of raids in Fayette County, and the Attorney General is asking the Fayette court to order them confiscated as gambling devices.

And that, to any informed layman, is exactly what they are. Although they usually carry a label which says they are "for amusement only," it is quite obvious that most of their owners are interested in other things than providing the public with an innocent pastime.

The "pinballs", in fact, are the successors of the slot machines, which went out of existence in Pennsylvania a few years ago with no regrets on the part of those who believe in clean government. The revenue from slot machines was a definite factor in the corruption of public officials throughout the nation, as the Senate Crime Committee clearly established.

Our information is that most of the "pinball" machines are owned by syndicates and are installed in "territories" agreed upon by the syndicates, probably in conjunction with law enforcement officials.

So another vicious racket is with us. And we hope the authorities are able to break it up before it gets such a hold as the slot machine racket once had.

Extraordinary

WE SUSPECT the organized medical profession would have given a good deal had Dr. Joseph H. Kris, who attended Benny Hooper, consulted it before submitting his $1,500 bill to the Hooper family.

Dr. Kris undoubtedly is a competent physician. And saving Benny's life was certainly worth $1,500 if it had taken only 15 minutes.

But what Dr. Kris doesn't know about [illegible] would fill a good-sized volume. And his attempt to put a price tag on his services by the situation of this kind has given the enemies of [illegible] some ammunition they didn't need to have.

We suspect, however, that [illegible] has known all [illegible] doctor will [illegible] Dr. Kris [illegible]

Merry-Go-Round—

'Liberals' in Senate Have Family Row

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON — Two of the most respected liberals in the Senate, both good personal friends, participated in a bitter backstage battle over civil rights the other day. They were Sen. Wayne Morse of Oregon and Sen. Paul Douglas of Illinois, both Democrats and both strongly for the civil rights bill.

Mr. Pearson

However, after Senator Morse took the Senate floor to announce that he had changed his mind and now opposed plans to circumvent the Senate Judiciary Committee and debate the civil rights bill immediately, it threw consternation into the ranks of liberal senators. They were supporting the Nixon-Knowland plan to bypass the Senate Judiciary Committee where the civil rights bill has been blocked for months.

Within an hour after Morse's speech, Senator Douglas called a secret meeting of the liberals in the District of Columbia Committee room. Present were: Carroll of Colorado, Church of Idaho, Clark of Pennsylvania, Humphrey of Minnesota, Murray of Montana, Morse and Neuberger of Oregon, Pastore of Rhode Island, together with administrative assistants representing seven other senators.

Douglas Angry

Senator Douglas presided. He was white with anger.

"The first thing I want to take up is the conduct of the senior Senator from Oregon," he said. "If this were a military group he would be court-martialed. He has betrayed our cause. Furthermore, he did it on the Senate floor. He did not take the trouble to come back to this group first and discuss it with his colleagues. We can't court-martial him. I shall not embarrass his colleague from Oregon, Senator Neuberger, but I will call on Senator Clark for advice as to what we should do."

"That's what you think you're going to do," replied Morse, bristling equally with rage. "However, you're going to listen to me and then I'm going to excuse myself. I shan't sit here and listen to myself being abused.

"What I did was not easy. I wasn't lacking in courage. I owed it to my constituents and to you to explain my change. When I was convinced I was wrong I did the only thing possible — I confessed that I was wrong.

"The Senator has said that I did not come back to this group," Morse continued. "But what good would it have done? It would just create a row. I now excuse myself."

Morse Walks Out

Morse then motioned to his administrative assistant and walked out.

An embarrassed silence followed. Morse's Oregon colleague, Neuberger, broke it.

"I think your rebuke was a mistake, Paul," he said to the Senator from Illinois. "Morse has done so many great things. You and he have been associated in so many of them together."

Pastore of Rhode Island agreed. "We need everyone we can get. There must be no fall-out among the liberals," he said. "This breach must be healed."

Senator Douglas, who had now cooled off, said he wondered whether Morse's change regarding committee consideration of civil rights had not resulted from a deal to swing Southern votes for Hells Canyon.

"I'm sure no such thing happened," spoke up Neuberger. "I'm just as concerned over Hells Canyon as Wayne. I'm sure I would know about it if he had made any such commitment."

"I feel very bad about this," said Douglas. "But we'll go onto other things. Is there anyone here who chooses to follow Wayne Morse?"

"He has raised some very important points," said Humphrey of Minnesota. "I think we should consider them very carefully."

Clark Speaks Out

"I should like to say that I am in this to the very end," interrupted Pennsylvania's Clark. "I'm sure Morse acted in good faith. But I simply do not agree that civil rights should be side-tracked now by the Senate rules."

"The rules of the Senate are not the Ten Commandments," said Neuberger. "They were not put on Mount Sinai by Jehovah. When Dick Russell talks about them, his sepulchral tone would make you think that they were sacred. But Senate rules must not be used to set aside the Constitution of the United States.

"So, despite my deep affection and great respect for my senior colleague, I'm convinced he is wrong on this point," concluded Neuberger.

Civil rights is not a major issue in my state," said Senator [illegible] not popular in Colorado. But I'm sticking to the correct. I consider this civil rights bill to be important and very much needed."

At this point the meeting broke up. Several senators stopped to speak to Douglas personally and [illegible] he and Morse patch [illegible]

The Sea Parted, and They Passed Over on Dry Land!

What the Court Actually Said

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

There is an erroneous impression that the Supreme Court is undermining the authority of Congress to investigate Communism and cutting the foundation from under the Smith Act to prosecute Communist leaders.

It is doing no such thing — or so it seems to me.

Mr. Drummond

There is plenty of room for honest differences of opinion over the Court's latest rulings. The argument is already going on so furiously that one newspaper has remarked with relish how it would like to join a crusade to impeach the offending justices.

Obviously impeachment talk is just rhetoric. Franklin D. Roosevelt's roundly defeated court-packing plan of 1937 — to get a bench that would give him the kind of decisions he wanted — was a mild course of action compared to impeachment which would be a court-unpacking plan. Of course, both are wrong and thoughtful critics of the Supreme Court's opinions do not bring impeachment into the discussion.

The Watkins Decision

What I want to bring out is that public controversy, pro and con, over the latest decisions ought to rest on what the Court actually ruled, not on what some headlines say the Court ruled.

Take the Watkins decision. John T. Watkins, whose conviction for contempt of Congress was set aside by the Court, was required to answer and did answer all committee questions concerning his own pro-Communist activities. He was required to answer and did answer all questions concerning people he knew who were presently engaged in pro-Communist activities. He only declined to answer questions about those he knew had broken with the Communist party several years ago.

It was at this point that the Supreme Court ruled 6-to-1 that Congress exceeded its investigatory powers. The Court made these points:

That the congressional power to investigate stems from the congressional right to legislate and thus investigation must clearly serve the legislative function.

That while the congressional power to investigate is very large, it is not unlimited. It must not have the predominant result of invading "the private rights of individuals."

That the congressional power to investigate does not reach to exposure "for the sake of exposure."

This means, it seems to me, a very careful and moderate limitation on congressional committee investigations and a requirement that the congressional committees clearly establish the relevance of their questions at the time of the hearings.

Take the Smith Act decision. Here the Court freed five California Communist leaders and ordered a new trial for nine others — in both instances because of trial errors.

The Court again sustained the constitutionality of the Smith Act, which forbids conspiracy to advocate the overthrow of the government by force and violence.

Judge's Charge Cited

The Court found the California trial judge in error because he failed to charge the jury, as Judge Medina had in New York, that advocacy of violence is illegal only when it is directed to inciting an act of violence, not just teaching the theory of violence. Judge Medina's charge did not prevent the New York jury from finding the Communist leaders guilty.

It does seem to me that Justice Harlan's majority opinion is overly semantic in defining the word "organize" as meaning only "to bring into being." The legislative history of the Smith Act suggests that Congress was referring to keeping the Communist party in being as well as bringing it into being and this will undoubtedly have to be cleared up.

Congress's primary role is not to investigate; its primary role is to legislate and investigation must be faithfully used to serve that end.

Congress Can't Punish

Congress's primary role is not to punish and prosecute, and thus when its investigations reach to that end they must not be allowed, as the Court says, "to abridge protected freedoms." It is the role of the courts, not Congress, to prosecute and punish.

And when the Supreme Court surveys these precious constitutionally-protected freedoms, it is not thinking merely of a few Communist leaders, it is thinking of 170,000,000 Americans.

United Press Service Called Daily Miracle

By HARRY R. PORE Jr.

United Press, the worldwide news gathering service to which The Daily Independent has long subscribed, observed its 50th anniversary yesterday. And the occasion deserves the public notice it is receiving.

"The UP", as we call it, is one of those miracles that happens day-in and day-out without our thinking very much about it. Yet, if it should suddenly stop happening even for a few hours, one of the key pieces would be lost out of the complicated jigsaw puzzle of American life.

A few of the UP's vital statistics give you an idea of the scope of the service:

—It serves 4,833 clients, most of them daily newspapers.

—It employs 10,000 editors, correspondents, photographers and telegraphers.

—It operates 205 news and picture bureaus, 110 of them in the United States.

—It leases some 400,000 miles of telephone and telegraph lines to deliver news to clients in the United States.

The Independent first subscribed to the United Press service on May 7, 1919. Since the paper was founded in 1902 — June 28, incidentally — it printed only local news for the first 17 years of its existence. So far as The Independent of those days was concerned, the world was bounded by the Monongahela River, Brewery Hill, "Wireton" and "Dutchtown". (If you don't know where "Wireton" and "Dutchtown" were, you're a newcomer here.)

Service Was Crude

It must have been World War I which persuaded our predecessors that the paper needed a wire service. Nobody is around the office now who remembers whether they chose UP because it was the best or because it was the cheapest. But we've had it ever since.

From a mechanical standpoint, the service was still pretty crude when I came to the paper in the early 1930s. A couple of times a day we would receive on a streetcar from Pittsburgh an envelope containing carbon copies of the dispatches as they were received by telegraph in the Pittsburgh bureau of UP.

We were also linked to the bureau, along with a number of other small-paper clients, by a leased telephone wire. Shortly before our news deadline we would receive a call on this line and for 10 or 15 minutes a man on the other end would read abbreviated selections of late dispatches. We took them down on the typewriter.

This was one of my duties for several years, and if I say so myself, I got pretty adept at stopping and starting the UP reader and getting our money's worth in last-minute news.

We used this telephone connection for special events, too. I well remember the night Bruno Hauptmann was executed for the kidnap-murder of the Lindbergh baby. We put out an extra edition, and the story was dictated to me paragraph by paragraph.

In a few years, however, we felt we could afford a modified teletype service. We continued to receive the envelopes by streetcar, but in place of the phone hook-up we had a manually-operated teletype.

We made selections from the news offered during the 15-minute teletype call, stopping the operator with a typed message when we had all we wanted of a proferred dispatch.

Took Full Service

This took us up to World War II. And then it was quickly apparent that we needed a full teletype service, receiving all our national and world news in typed form instantly as transmitted on the UP's wires.

The latest step in the automation evolution has been the teletypesetter wire. Now from 3 a. m. to 3 p. m. six days a week we are receiving the report of the UP on perforated tape, ready to be fed into our automatically operated Linotypes.

It is a mechanical marvel, of course, and it never fails to astound visitors seeing it for the first time.

But for us, that isn't the miracle of UP. The miracle lies in the vast human organization that gathers news in every corner of the earth, writes it, prepares it for transmission and delivers it in split seconds into our office. The little machine that I can hear alternately humming and clattering as I write this literally connects our office with the pulse-beat of the whole world.

Later this year a book about the UP is to be published. Its title is "Deadline Every Minute". And that is not a slogan but the literal truth.

Tragedy Stalks Woods; Now Summer's Here

By JOHN H. DAY

Tragedy stalks ever in the timberlands. The little wild, shy, furred and feathered folk face constand dangers, not only from natural enemies who would destroy them in the routine scheme of things, but also from the lash of driving rain and the whipping fury of maddened winds. Snug dens and cozy nests fare poorly when wild wind and wild water adopt the code of violence. The best laid schemes of wildlings everywhere "gang aft agley", even as do those of frailer humans.

I made a date to take a group of "bird watchers" on a tour of a favorite oak woodland, promising to show them the rather rare summer tanager. A week before the appointed day I cruised the area, marking down the nests of vireo and phoebe, and the snug cabin of the red-bellied woodpecker 20 feet up a locust-tree. After careful observation I even located the nest of the summer tanager at the tip of an oak branch not far above the roadway.

These items, plus some unusual wild flowers and the fun of hunting out a kingfisher's burrow along a neighboring stream, added up to a pleasant trip afield. Then came the morning of the appointed day with rain falling out of a dismal sky. At ten o'clock the downpour was heavier and by noon there had been no letup. No one in his right mind would venture onto the slick mud lane to the tanager's nest on a day like that. By one o'clock, with the rain still falling, I gave up the whole idea.

Nest torn loose

The following Sunday I went back there to see how the tanagers were getting along. The roadway was dry enough to navigate and I drove into the cabin yard where there's room to park the car. Everything was the same as the day I had set up the hike, with exception of the tanager's nest. Some violent vagary of a windstorm had caught and cuffed the oak branch and the nest was torn loose from its moorings, half tipped over.

The tanager was singing in the tree, and there is probably another nest in the making thereabouts, but had I promised those bird watchers the summer tanager's nest and then come up with that wreck dangling at the end of the oak branch, my name, for the day at least, would have been as the mud in the low spots in that delightful country roadway. When you promise rabid "nature nuts" some trailside entertainment you've got to make good.

I found a seat at the base of a sour gum and lazed in the shade as phoebes and wood pewees murdered hapless insects in the air all about me. Wood thrushes were in the Sunday choir lofts, their lovely music at its best. A big pileated woodpecker scolded occasionally from somewhere on the hill behind me, and later I heard him hammering away as he chopped out a luncheon tidbit. An oddly abbreviated song in the trees close by turned out to be the music of an indigo bunting who had apparently not memorized all the music.

While maneuvering in the sun to pin down the bunting I came across the rare little orchid known as the twayblade. It has an unprepossessing flower, but is one of the most interesting of the wild orchids hereabouts. The yellow rattlesnake weed was blooming, and on the open hillside the raspberries were coloring the delicious fruits which will be ripe in another week.

Summer Solstice

You don't have to consult the calendar to know that this is the week of the summer solstice, when the sun "stands still" at the year's longest day, and then starts the long swing back which all too soon will bring the color of October and the grim weather of the winter solstice in December. Just drive along any rural highway and sure evidence of summer is now all about you. The field sparrow, already at the plaintive music which underlines the dusty, scorching days which lie ahead, is one of summer's press agents.

Elderberry in full gorgeous bloom by the roadside, meadow daisies everywhere, and the first chicory showing blue where the limestone crops out in the edgings — these are indeed signs that summer has signed another lease. Fencerows crowded with pushing greenery, brown-eyed susans in the corners, and from a fence post just across the way a quail jumping the gun, shouting "Wheat's Ripe!" in impatient hurry to push the year into good old summertime.

Nevada is the driest state in the Union. It averages slightly more than eight inches of rainfall annually.

Brownies to Play Munhall High

Brownsville High has booked Munhall for the 1957 football opener, but the school still needs foes for Sept. 20 and Nov. 1 to complete a 10-game schedule. Brownie officials have contacted practically every school in the WPIAL in an effort to fill the open spots in the upcoming season . . . Lee Walls, the former Pirate who was traded a few weeks back to Chicago, won all-state honors in football-basketball-baseball during his schoolboy days in Pasadena, Calif., back in the late forties . . . Joe Marconi, former Bethlehem Jr. High School athlete who starred with both West Virginia University and the Los Angeles Rams, has graduated from the supply clerk course at the Army's general supply school, Fort Knox, Ky.

Despite 16 straight losses, West Newton is determined to stick out the current Mon Valley League baseball season. To ease the financial burden, the WN boys plan to play all of their remaining games on the road . . . Jim Cunningham, Connellsville High's much-sought football fullback, has decided to enroll at the University of Pittsburgh. He's a good one . . . Dick Gray, ex of Jefferson High, is hitting .328 with the St. Paul club in the American Association. He leads the league in RBIs with 55 . . . Incidentally the current issue of The Sporting News has a fine story on Gray.

Ex Cager Wins Trip to Greece

The former Buc great was going for his 3,000th big league hit when he reached first on a questionable infield play. Waner signalled to the official scorer that he didn't want his 3,000th hit to be a tainted one. So an error was scored. A little later Paul rapped out a clean safety.

Pirate Games on Television

Today and tomorrow's Pirate-Cincy games will be televised over KDKA-TV. This afternoon's game will begin at 2:30; tomorrow's at 2 p. m. . . . This may not be sports, but it's food for thought. The concession stand at the firemen's fair in West Newton last week disposed of 709 pounds of wieners, 287 pounds of ground beef, more than 1,000 dozen buns and 9,600 bottles of pop! . . . The Daily News baseball league will stage its annual all-star game tomorrow at Helen Richey Memorial Field in McKeesport. The league has been divided into Monongahela and Youghiogheny sections for the contest.

Upset Bid May Block Wheeling Downs Sale

WHEELING, W. Va. (UP) — A possible upset bid by New England interests and a race against time stood today as major roadblocks toward purchase of Wheeling Downs race track by the Hazel Park Racing Assn. of Detroit.

Hazel Park submitted a high bid of $1,780,000 for the half-mile track at a government hearing Friday. The figure topped by $25,000 on offer by a group of New York men associated in the ownership of Yonkers Raceway.

U.S. District Judge Harry E. Watkins scheduled a hearing for June 28 at which time he will either confirm or reject the Hazel Park offer.

He said, however, he received a telegram from E. M. Lowe, president of the Bay State Raceway, Boston, requesting him to delay confirmation of the sale.

Lowe Plans Offer

Lowe told the United Press he would submit an offer for Wheeling Downs, which is being auctioned off to help settle income tax claims against owner William G. Lias, but refused to name a figure.

According to West Virginia law, the Hazel Park group must produce affidavits by the June 28 deadline from each of its 1,100 stockholders scattered across the country stating that they have had no criminal record within the past 10 years.

In accepting bids by the Detroit and New York interests yesterday Judge Watkins dismissed an offer of $1,500,000 by Philadelphia contractor John B. Kelley as "so inadequate it shocks the conscience of the court." Kelly's bid, submitted June 12, was the previous high figure.

Friday's hearing was held [illegible] on the bid's offer and receive [illegible] post [illegible] week. Bids still may be submitted until June 28.

The new high bid was submitted by James V. Bellanca, vice president of Hazel Park. The next closest bid, of $1,755,000, was made by Arthur L. Stoll, New York attorney representing Charles Meltzer and Associates.

When the bidding was reopened, Stoll made an offer of $1,725,000, but Bellanca bid $1,750,000. Stoll topped that by $5,000 and Bellanca raised his figure to $1,780,000. Stoll was unwilling to go higher.

Makes Down Payment

Bellanca submitted a check for $100,000 as a down payment and was told by state Racing Commissioner James C. McClure that his application for a license would receive "prompt" attention. The New York group also posted a $100,000 down payment in the event the Hazel Park license request is denied.

In addition to Bellanca, Hazel Park officials at the hearing were Secretary John M. Monoghan; Treasurer S. Truman Hart; Jack Tocco, a director; Anthony Zerilli, administrative coordinator for the association, and Robert Leavitt, the mutuel manager.

The New York group included Stoll, Meltzer, Morton Tananbaum, Great Neck, N.Y., Alfred and Stanley Tananbaum, Harrison, N.Y., and Frederick Ballon, New York, treasurer of Yonkers Raceway and president of Sunshine Park at Tampa, Fla.

City Net Stars Bow In Tourney

Monessen's Mary Katsuleris wasn't able to stop a sensational 12 year old Charleston, W. Va. girl from sweeping the West Penn junior tournament in Pittsburgh yesterday.

Mary was considered the only real obstacle in the path of Peachie Kellmeyer. And it turned out that way, too.

Peachie had to work a little before whipping Mary. She won on scores of 6-2 and 6-2 to take the division title for girls under 18.

No Trouble

In the other two divisions — for girls under 15 and girls under 13— Peachie had no trouble romping to easy wins.

Despite that setback, Miss Katsuleris salvaged some prestige from the tournament.

She teamed with Len Modzelwski to win the mixed doubles competition.

Earlier May and her doubles partner, Karlene Linton, dropped a long match to Wendy Gilmore and Elaine Hinkel in title play. The scores were 3-6, 6-2 and 6-3.

Baker Bows

Another Monessen netter, Jim Baker, lost out in the boys doubles finals.

He and Len Modzewiski dropped their match to Roger Weigand and Joe Brown, 4-6, 6-2 and 6-4.

The big star of the tournament was Miss Kellmeyer. She defeated Judy Knepper, Rosslyn Farms, 6-1 and 6-0, for the girls under 13 title; then took Liz Stockhausen, Mt. Washington, 6-0 and 6-0, for the girls under 15 crown.

Ricketts Brothers Team in One Hit Triumph

By UNITED PRESS

Dick Ricketts, who has already proven himself to be quite capable with a basketball, is now making a reputation for himself with the smaller-sized baseball.

Ricketts, an All - America hoop star at Duquesne, hurled a masterful one-hitter Friday night as Rochester shut out league-leading Richmond, 2-0. The victory, Ricketts' fifth against one loss, enabled the Red Wings to move into a fourth-place tie with Columbus. Jim Coates gave up only five hits for the Vees, but was tagged with his third defeat.

Toronto climbed to within a half-game of first place by beating Havana, 4-2. A three-run homer by Mike Goliat was the decisive blow as Humberto Robinson won his 11th game, tops in the league.

In other games, Miami whipped Montreal, 11-5, and Columbus split a twin-bill with Buffalo, the Jets winning the first 9-3 and dropping the nightcap, 2-0.

Ricketts, who broke in with Allentown in the Eastern League last year, pitched the one-hitter with his brother, Dave, doing the catching.

Braves Win in Minor League

Braves won their third straight Minor League game yesterday, swamping the White Sox, 19-3.

Ronald Junk stopped the losers on five hits. He helped his own cause with a triple. Jim Dzyak chipped in with a triple and two singles.

Score by innings:

White Sox	100	002	—3	5	8

No-Hitter, Triple Play in PONY Loop

A no-hitter and triple play featured PONY League action last night.

Andy Carollo authored the no - hitter as the Lions whacked the Eagles, 14-0.

The triple play was executed by CIO in a losing 8-4 effort against the Ravens.

The PONY Leaguers will be in action again this evening with the Eagles meeting the Ravens and Lions taking on CIO at Ninth Street Park.

Carolio fanned eleven as he fashioned the first hitless game of the season. He was never seriously in trouble.

The PONY veteran also helped his own cause with a home run and double. Ted Dominick chipped in with a circuit clout while Tony Romasco stroked a two-bagger.

Defensive Gem

CIO pulled off its defensive gem when Bill Lutes lined to Tom Felgar who stepped on first to double off a runner, then tossed to second for another out.

It was the first triple play in league history.

The Birds, were undismayed, though, as they scored in every inning but the fourth to pick up the win. That kept them a half game within the front-running Lions.

Pirates Defeat Cincy, 3 to 2, in Eleven Innings

CINCINNATI (UP)—The Pittsburgh Pirates continued their mastery over the Cincinnati Redlegs Friday night with a 3-2 victory in 11 innings.

The win snapped the Pirates' three-game losing streak and boosted the Bucs' consecutive victories over the Redlegs to five, after a losing streak to Cincinnati that ran 15 games over two seasons.

Pittsburgh tied the game in the ninth inning and combined a single, sacrifice, long fly and another single to notch the victory.

The Bucs tallied their first run in the opening frame on singles by Bill Mazeroski, Bill Virdon and Hank Foiles. The Redlegs took the lead in the fifth when Wally Post hit a two-run homer to make the score, 2-1.

The Pirates returned to the lead in the top of the ninth, with the aid of a wild pitch by starter Joe Nuxall. Dick Groat, who returned to the Pirate lineup for the first time since he sprained his ankle last May 26, opened with a single. Johnny O'Brien ran for him, advanced on Virdon's sacrifice and scored Nuxall's wild pitch.

Foiles Singles

Hank Foiles brought home the winning tally in the 11th with a single that scored Mazeroski.

Dee Fondy, who was struck by a thrown ball during pre-game practice at St. Louis Wednesday, had good news from the doctors. Eye specialist Dr. Ben Miller said Fondy had 20-20 vision in his injured left eye.

Doctors said hte Pittsburgh first baseman would be able to leave Jewish Hospital, St. Louis, this week end and rejoin the Pirates in Chicago. But physicians doubted whether Fondy would be able to play for a "couple of weeks."

The Bucs meet Cincinnati again today, with Vernon Law (3-3) scheduled to pitch for Pittsburgh against Don Gross (4-3).

DOCTORING YOUR GOLF

By CARY MIDDLECOFF

Make Clubhead Work

Golfers, who don't believe that the built-in clubface loft will give the ball all the loft it needs, are the ones most often guilty of hitting the ball on the toe of the club. They feel that they must give the clubface an assist with their hands.

This faulty hand action encourages falling away from the ball which, in turn, draws the plane of the swing inward. The result? Hitting the ball out on the toe of the club and a loss of power.

What else can you expect when you keep your weight back on the right foot during the downswing? Actually, the swing calls for shifting the weight from the right to the left side simultaneously with the start of the downswing.

Shift your weight as soon as you start down. And by all means let the clubface loft take care of getting the ball up and away.

Turcaso Wins Again In Softball

Myfords moved into second place in the City Softball League standings behind crafty Tony Turcaso's five-hit victory over Italian Hall last night.

For four innings, Turcaso had a no-hitter going.

In the fifth inning, the Italian Hall boys broke the spell, scoring four runs on homers by Ed Glaski and Gene Quinn.

However the Myfords were far ahead at the time.

Turcaso helped his own cause with a couple of doubles. Bud Beeler chipped in with a homer and triple while Getty Bieneck had a homer and single.

ULCA Prepares To Quit Pacific Coast League

BERKELEY, Calif. (UP) — UCLA, which has been agitating for more than a year to break out of the Pacific Coast Conference, can have its wish after the 1958 football season—but must follow a stricter athletic code than the one it violated.

That was the gist of a compromise resolution passed Friday by the board of regents which governs both the Bruins and the University of California.

The plan calls for the two schools to play out their 1957 and 1958 round-robin football schedules within the PCC. After that season, they will be at liberty to schedule any team outside the conference they desire.

At the same time, the regents imposed a stricter set of regulations on the pair than those recently passed by the Pacific Coast Conference. They take effect immediately. UCLA was put on three years probation in May of last year for illegal payments to athletes, as were three other PCC schools.

Softball Practice

Italian Hall will play a practice softball game against a team from Monongahela tomorrow at 2 p. m. in City Park.

New Eagle Nips Monessen, 4-3

Loss Drops Ozarks to Sixth Place in Valley Loop Standings

New Eagle scored four runs in the first two innings, then held on grimly to nip the Monessen Ozarks, 4-3, last night.

As a result, the improving New Eagle nine climbed over the Ozarks in the Mon Valley League standings. Monessen slipped to sixth place.

Vic Furiga, a crafty "junk" artist, stopped the Ozarks on seven hits. He was touched for three runs in the third inning, but slammed the door otherwise.

Stingy, Too

Monessen's Fuzzy Anderson, who came on relief of James Smith in the second inning, was stingy, too. He pitched shutout ball in the final four frames.

Unfortunately for the Ozarks, the damage was already done.

The only extra base hit of the game was a two-bagger by Furiga.

Yanks Trip Chisox to Close in On Lead in American League

By MILTON RICHMAN

The cocky, high-riding New York Yankees have been saying all along that it was only a matter of time until they would overtake the faltering Chicago White Sox, and the way they have it figured, today could be the time.

Only a half-game behind the White Sox now as a result of their 4-2 victory over them Friday night, the Yanks, shooting for their ninth straight victory, can take over the American League lead for the first time since May 9 if they beat Chicago again today.

Johnny Kucks, who pitched the first six innings Friday night and left with the score 3-2 in his favor, was the winner, but reliever Bob Grim also won praise when he held Chicago to one hit in the last three innings and struck out the side in the ninth. Jim Wilson was the loser.

The Yanks scored the two runs that decided the game in the fourth inning on singles by Yogi Berra, Andy Carey and Bobby Richardson, coupled with a sacrifice and a perfect squeeze bunt by Kucks.

Stobbs Finally Wins

In other American League action, Washington southpaw Chuck Stobbs snapped his 16-game losing streak with a 6-3 victory over Cleveland; Baltimore defeated Detroit, 6-5, and Boston beat Kansas City, 4-3.

The St. Louis Cardinals padded their National League lead to 1½ games with a 2-0 triumph over Brooklyn; Philadelphia defeated Milwaukee, 6-1; Pittsburgh topped Cincinnati, 3-2, in 11 innings and the Giants outlasted the Cubs, 12-10, in 10 innings.

Stobbs held the Indians to seven hits in registering his first victory of the season. The Senators scored their first four runs off loser Don Mossi. Art Schult, recently acquired from Cincinnati, homered for Washington.

Baltimore rallied for three runs in the ninth to defeat Jim Bunning. Pinch-hitter Bob Hale of the Orioles singled home two runs in the ninth, and after Don Lee relieved Bunning, Billy Gardner singled home the winning run. Reliever Ken Lehman was the winning pitcher.

Jackie Jensen clouted a homer and a single to drive in three runs in Boston's victory. Mickey Vernon also homered for the Red Sox. Willard Nixon blanked the A's on two hits for six innings but injured his leg in the seventh. Gus Zernial and Bob Cerv homered off reliever Rudy Minarcin.

Rookie Hurls Two-Hitter

Young Von McDaniel, the $50,000 bonus beauty checked the Dodgers on two hits in his first major league start. St. Louis scored its first run off rookie Danny McDevitt in the sixth and added another off Don Bessent in the eighth on Don Blasingame's triple and Alvin Dark's single.

Ed Bouchee drove in five runs and southpaw Curt Simmons set the Braves down on eight hits as he beat them for the second time in five days. The loser was Lew Burdette.

Hank Foiles' 11th-inning single won it for Pittsburgh. Wally Post's two-run homer in the fifth off starter Bob Friend gave the Redlegs a 2-1 lead and they held it until Joe Nuxhall wild-pitched the tieing run across in the ninth. Bob Purkey was the winner. Frank Robinson had five hits in five trips for Cincinnati.

Danny O'Connell and Bobby Thomson hit 10th-inning homers in the Giants' victory over the Cubs. Andre Rodgers' grand-slam homer in the ninth gave the Giants a 10-6 margin but Chicago tied the score in the bottom of the frame. Walt Moryn hit a three-run homer for the Cubs.

Stobbs Finally Wins a Game

WASHINGTON (UP) — "Now I know how Don Larsen felt."

Those were Chuck Stobbs' first words after being mobbed, hugged, kissed and swarmed over by Washington Senator teammates moments after he snapped his 16-game losing streak Friday night with a 6-3 victory over Cleveland.

Stobbs, aided by 9,462 morale-boosting Senator fans who brought every conceivable kind of good-luck charm to the park, didn't pitch a perfect game but his seven-hitter was good enough to earn him his first victory of the season after 11 defeats and his first triumph in 17 decisions since he beat Baltimore, 2-0, last Sept. 5.

Giambra Fights Calhoun to Draw

SYRACUSE, N. Y. (UP)—Skillful Joey Giambra and aggressive Rory Calhoun, ranking middleweight contenders who fought to an unusual 10-round draw Friday night, don't want a championship fight—they want a re-match.

What was closest to the hearts of both fighters today was a chance to prove the draw was a "fluke," although the state's boxing rules have a supplemental point system to make such a decision a rarity.

The fourth-ranked Giambra, a slight favorite going into the fight, weighed 157¾ and the sixth-ranked Calhoun weighed 159.

Referee Ruby Goldstein scored it for Calhoun, 5-4-1 and judge Nick Gamboli gave the same margin to Giambra. Judge Frank Forbes gave each fighter four rounds with two rounds even. His card also had an even five points for each boxer under the supplemental point system. The United Press card gave it to Giambra, 5-4-1.

Many Changes in '57 Buick Make It Really an Outstanding Car

If you'll drop in the show room of Mon Valley Motors, Inc., 252 E. Donner avenue in Monessen, Buick sales and service, you'll marvel at the many new and outstanding features of the 1957 Buick and then you'll realize why so many people are buying them.

Here are some changes worth noting:

New Engines—all four series—Roadmaster, Super, Century, Special — have 364-cubic inch engines, up from 322 cubic inches last year.

Roadmaster, Super and Century engines generate 300 horsepower with 10-to-1 compression ratio, increased from 255 horsepower and 9.5-to-1 ratio; Special series engines generate 250 horsepower with 9.5-to-1 compression ratio, up from 220 and 8.9-to-1.

Lower Silhouette — All cars reduced in height, some models as much as three and three-eighths inches lower than last year, without sacrificing ground clearance. Headroom remains same, legroom increased in four-door hardtops.

Styling — Styling changes include new front and rear design, larger panoramic windshields, three-piece back windows on Century and Special, optional on Roadmaster; sculptured sweepspear molding, new bumpers front and rear.

Rear body pillars on Roadmaster and Super series wider, sloping forward from top to bottom. On four door models a portion of rear door above doorbelt line incorporated into pillar. This, plus fact entire door is located forward of rear wheel cutout, provides easier access to rear seat.

Hoodlines lowered, fender lines raised to accentuate long, low silhouette, and provide better visability.

Sculptured sweepspear molding in bright stainless steel with baked enamel center line in tangerine color, which remains same on all models regardless of body color.

Twin chrome moldings extending over trunk lid and roof to windshield distinguish standard Roadmaster models. If one-piece back window is desired, chrome moldings extend over trunk lid only.

New chassis — Stability on corners and curves improved with system used for first time. New anti-drive device reduces front end dives on fast stops by 60 per cent.

A safety minder which buzzes constantly when predetermined speed is reached is featured as optional equipment on all models. Safety minder can be set at any speed desired.

Twenty body styles in 1957 line, including two — and-four door sedans available in Special series only.

Three estate wagons offered in Special and Century series, two in four-door hardtop styling without center body pillars. Regular design with center pillars available in Special series only.

That passing years cannot take away,
A place in our hearts that nothing can fill,
We miss you mother and always will
Your memory is our keepsake,
With that we shall never part,
God has you in His keeping,
We have you in our hearts.
Sadly missed by Sons, Daughters and Grandchildren

In loving memory of our dear husband, father and grandfather, John Breda, who died 17 years ago tomorrow, June 23, 1940.
We live today with memories
Of days when you were here
We miss you still and always will

At night when all is silent
And sleep forsakes our eyes.

Where our dear loved one lies
Sadly missed by Wife, Children and Grandchildren.

'Mystery Ship' Shifts Cargo At U. S. Depot

NEW YORK (UP)—A curtain of secrecy remained today around cargo shifting operations of a "mystery ship" flying the Israeli flag at a U.S. Navy ammunition depot.

The whitish-grey vessel docked at the Navy depot at Earle, N.J., late Friday. An unofficial source told the United Press that it was flying the Israeli flag.

Efforts to identify the ship and the nature of its cargo drew evasive or non-committal answers, yet the cargo shift was being made under strictest security measures.

The extraordinary secrecy surrounding the ship recalled a disclosure by the United Press in February, 1956, of a shipment of 18 M41 Walker Bulldog tanks which was being loaded aboard a Liberian freighter for transport to Saudi Arabia.

President Eisenhower halted the shipment for 48 hours, then released it over protests of some U.S. senators and the Israeli government. The administration said the tanks had been contracted for training purposes before the Mid-East flareup.

Nazarene Church Bible School Program Held

The Daily Vacation Bible School of Nazarene Church closed on Friday evening with a special program.

The group marched into the auditorium of the church singing the class theme song, "Boys and Girls for Jesus". The group gave the salute to the flag and sang "America", "Onward Christian Soldiers" and "I'm Going to Read My Bible Through".

A trumpet solo followed by Denny Greenwood. He played "God Bless America". The congregation sang, "Tell Me the Story of Jesus".

Responsive reading was led by Rev. Frederick Burchell, dean of the Bible school. Prayers were by Charles Greenwood, Sunday School superintendent.

The Nursery Dep't sang, "I'll be a Sunbeam", "Only a Boy Named David" and "If You are Saved You Will Know It". Kindergarten girls sang, "Jesus Loves Me". Linda Wagner, from junior group sang a solo, "I Would Be Like Jesus" and the group also had a skit on their memory work with each child telling something about what they have learned. The group then sang, "This Little Light of Mine" and "Hallelujah". The primary girls recited their memory verses and sang "God Needs Helpers". Junior boys recited memory verses and sang "Following Jesus". The group also sang J-O-Y.

Mr. Burchell awarded certificates to all attending Bible School and merits to all those completing memory work.

Home Exercises Help the Child

By H. N. BUNDESEN, M.D.

A cross-eyed child needs competent orthopic treatment.

It is true that in a few cases of crossed-eye caused by nervous conditions, the affliction has disappeared with elimination of the nervousness.

However, it is also true that in the vast majority of cases, the condition does not disappear unless it is treated. Some children simply do not outgrow the trouble.

In effect, a cross-eyed youngster is a cripple. And unfortunate as it may be, he is apt to be made the target of cruel jokes by his playmates.

Most children with crossed-eye don't have to face this bitter fate. Many of them can be cured.

Maybe orthoptic training alone will do the job; maybe the child will also need glasses or an operation. In most cases, his trouble can probably be corrected.

Home exercises are very important in orthoptic training. Usually they are an adjunct to frequent visits to the office of an ophthalmologist.

Such training may take several weeks or it may take years. It is up to the ophthalmologist to decide how the patient is coming along.

Parents can be a great help in this training by seeing that the youngster faithfully performs perscribed exercises at home.

Perhaps your doctor will recommend the "bar reading exercise."

In this exercise, the youngster holds a pencil about midway between his eyes and the printed matter he is trying to read.

If both eyes are not functioning properly, and vision is supressed in one eye, the pencil will block out some of the letters. The patient must then focus his eyes so he can figuratively see through the pencil.

A pencil also is used to stimulate the nerve centers of convergence. In this exercise, the patient focuses his eyes on a pencil held exactly between his eyes and moves it to and from his nose.

Broadway Drama to Close Run Tonight

By JACK GAVER

NEW YORK (UPI)—Broadway loses one of its better dramas of recent years tonight when the long - lived "Inherit The Wind" calls it a run, and perhaps a word in behalf of a fine actor is called for in connection with the event.

The actor is Ed Begley, a heavy-set character man who can play anything you throw at him on a moment's notice and play it well. Millions, even if not too aware of his name, are familiar with his work through movie roles, but more especially through the many leading parts he has played on television.

This is an explanation rather than a defense, for an actor as good as Begley doesn't need a defense.

He was a member of the original cast of this play by Jerome Lawrence and Robert E. Lee which is a thinly disguised treatment of Tennessee's celebrated Scopes trial of some 30 years ago involving the right to teach the Darwinian theory of evolution.

Begley, if memory serves, didn't miss a performance after the premiere on April 1, 1955 in the No. 2 role of Matthew Harrison Brady. Brady is really William Jennings Bryan, crusading politician who elected to serve as special prosecutor of the evolution teacher Scopes.

Begley's work was barely overshadowed by the fine performance of Paul Muni in the sympathetic role of Henry Drummond, a stage designation of the famed attorney, Clarence Darrow, who defended Scopes.

The slightly belated point is this. Two weeks ago, Begley switched legalistic sides and took over the Drummond part when Muni left the cast. The fact that the closing comes so soon thereafter should not be considered a reflection on Begley, as the general public, unfamiliar with the situation, might regard it.

The play already had run its course. Even with Muni in it, it had been playing on a cut-rate ticket basis in recent weeks. A two-year run for a meaty drama such as this is phenomenal. There no longer was a backlog of advance ticket sales; no cushion of any kind, such as there might have been a year ago. An early closing was inevitable no matter how hot a box - office "name" might have taken over for Muni.

Begley was a fine Drummond, just as was Melvyn Douglas both in New York and in the touring company.

HERE'S HOW...

MAKE A PLAYGYM

The homecraftsman can easily build a playgym with bars, swings and crow's nest.

Cut the 4 by 4's to the lengths shown, allowing 2 feet below ground level. Use naturally durable or treated wood. Notch the posts as shown in (A), (B), and (C). Mark the location of dowels, 18 inches apart; the top dowel is 14 inches from the top of posts (B). Bore holes 1¼ inches long at each location.

The horizontal frame members are made of 2 by 6-inch lumber.

Next, dig the post holes. Assemble the frame sections using ½ by 3½-inch lag screws at each joint. Place the sections in the holes and partly fill the holes to brace the frame. Add the side and interior frame members, and the rungs. Use waterproof glue and finishing nails at dowel joints. Set the post in concrete.

Attach the floor, sides of the crow's nest and moulding.

Attach the swings; set all nails and round all sharp edges.

Paint or stain and varnish.

New Roof Materials Can Be Used Today

Architects report new advances in roof materials which it will pay the prospective home buyer to keep in mind.

An important roofing development is the introduction of self-sealing asphalt strip shingles which will resist winds of hurricane force. Developed by Flintkote, these shingles are made with a special adhesive on the underside of each shingle tab. When warmed by the sun, the adhesive bonds the shingles to each other to form an integrated roof

The shingles were field-tested for 15 years along the "hurricane belt" of the eastern seaboard. During severe storms, non-adhesive shingles were blown off but the self-sealing kind remained intact and undamaged. Winds which measured 75 miles per hour and greater failed to disturb them.

The lanes of adhesive are spaced so that any moisture which may get under these new shingles as a result of driving rains, melting snow and ice or condensation will drain off harmlessly. Under other methods of installation, water or moisture may be retained. It attacks the felt base of the shingle and shortens its life expectancy.

The new shingles can be applied in new homes and over wood or asphalt shingles or old roll roofing. Workmen are said to find them easier to install, since the adhesive is protected by an aluminum strip and eliminates the need of forcibly pulling shingles apart while on the roof.

Cementing of asphalt shingles into place was first adopted about five years ago, but the adhesive was not part of the shingle and was applied separately. The new method uses an adhesive that does not soften and set until it is firmly in place on the roof, thus reducing the danger that dripping adhesive might mar the face surfaces of shingles which have already been laid.

The Flintkote Company also developed the original asphalt strip shingle. Such shingles are now used on the roofs of 85 percent of the new homes built in the United States.

New Shingles Show Care in Manufacturing

An outstanding example of the care with which reputable manufacturers test new building materials before placing them on the market is a self-sealing asphalt strip shingle just introduced.

The shingle consists of an adhesive which cements down the tabs and holds them in place even under extremely high winds. Seal-tab shingles were first conceived before World War II and were installed on homes on the Eastern Seaboard in 1939 and 1940. After more than 15 years and many severe hurricanes, they are still in good condition.

Satisfied that self-sealing shingles would drastically reduce the amount of roof damage suffered as a result of high winds and hurricane conditions, Flintkote placed them on the market this spring.

Basement Space in The Home Important For Recreation Room

An important point for home seekers to check before signing for a home is the ease with which the basement can be finished off as a recreation room, later, says the Better Basement Institute.

The increase in size of the average American family and the importance of television for family recreation have resulted in demands for more living space, it says, and these demands are reflected in the sharp upsurge of interest in basement "rumpus areas."

"After the war, millions of young home buyers purchased basementless homes which lacked expansion facilities," the institute warns.

"As the size of their families increased, they found that they lacked adequate living space. Often they had to pull up stakes and move elsewhere at great inconvenience and cost.

"In a thoughtfully-designed basement, space may be found for a family fun room, bedrooms, laundry, sewing room, workshop and hobby rooms. The basement of a one-story house can provide the entire first floor, so it is easy to see why a basement's expansion potential is so important."

The institute says that adequate light, air and accessibility are the three major features home buyers should seek in the basement. Windows should be wide and well-spaced around the foundation, and there should be an exit from the basement to the outdoors.

"A basement entrance will make all future rooms more useful," it says. "When rooms are added, it will save workmen thousands of needless steps by enabling them to bring materials into the basement directly without tracking through the rest of the house.

One Hartford, Conn., home owner found that more than 300 trips between his basement and the outside were necessary to complete his game room.

"Basement entrances can be made completely weather-tight and burglar-proof with modern all-steel double-leaf inclining hatchways which come in different sizes to fit over the steps to the yard."

Among other features to look for in the basement, the institute says, are walls which resist the penetration of moisture; smooth floors on which tile can be laid with a minimum of difficulty; and to permit proper headroom.

15 Years Is Replacement for An Oil Burner

What's the replacement age of an oil burner?

About 15 years, in the opinion of oil burner dealers who responded to a survey made by a trade paper in the fuel oil industry.

While some dealers said ten years, others said 20 years, but 73 per cent said that the logical time would be 15 years.

This checks with earlier studies made by the same trade paper in which it was found that three-fifths of oil burners are replaced after 15 years.

It is interesting to note that the age at which oil burning equipment is being replaced is constantly being pushed farther ahead The explanation, according to the Plumbing and Heating Industries Bureau, is that oil burners are being improved with the result that they last longer.

These improvements go all the way down the line, the Bureau points out. The burner itself is better, quieter, less likely to clog, with the result that it needs fewer service calls. Most important of all is the fact that it provides better combustion and therefore greater economy.

Improvements also go down the line to the fuel itself which is of better quality, cleaner, and with non-corrosive additives.

Also there are available boiler-burner and furnace-burner combinations that are teamed up for efficiency and attractiveness.

Paint that is chipping or peeling must be removed before repainting. Failure to do so will cause the new paint to fail. Loose paint can be removed by using a wire brush, steel wool or coarse sandpaper. Then the surface should be smoothed with finer sandpaper, especially the edges to patch where loose paint had been removed. All bare wood surfaces exposed to the natural oil and grease in the air should be wiped with turpentine or mineral spirits.
